These new obligations are contained in a set of principles called the National Privacy Principles.

The principles set standards for the collection, storage, use and disclosure of "personal Information" (ie information about individuals). The principles also aim to ensure that personal information held by organizations is complete, accurate and secure and that individuals, about whom information is held, will have access to that information.

The principles apply essentially to personal information that is collected by the club on or after December 21, 2001. In some respects, however, they will apply to information we held on 21/12/2001 about existing members and other individuals. This notice accordingly does not apply to corporate members,

Any information we collect will not be used or disclosed other than for a purpose made known to you, a purpose you would reasonably expect, a purpose required or permitted by law, or a purpose otherwise authorized by you.
